

'Quick Guide' to the Comprehensive HE Licence

The Comprehensive Higher Education Licence extends the rights granted by the Basic Licence (to photocopy and scan from printed books, journals and magazines) to also allow copies to be made from digital published material.

Additional rights

- Digital Copies may be made from e-books and e-journals published by more than 2,000 publishers in the UK, US and several other countries
- Opted in publishers include Blackwell, Elsevier, Hodder & Stoughton, John Wiley & Sons, Macmillan Education, McGraw Hill, Oxford University Press, Palgrave Macmillan, Pearson, Random House, Sage and Wolters Kluwer
- Journal articles may be copied regardless of whether obtained as part of a journal subscription or obtained as a 'pay-per-view' single article
- Material that is copied may be stored on a VLE or on a course restricted intranet and can be embedded as part of a course pack
- Digital Copies may be downloaded by students
- Digital Copies may be printed out (for use in the classroom and individual study) and retained by the student

Benefits

- copying from a digital source is easier than scanning from print
- the scope to copy, store, download and print out digital material is often more extensive than allowed under the terms of the primary licence
- the standardised terms of the CLA Licence reduce the need to check specific variations in the terms of primary licences
- secure access on a local server can be provided to users when either a link to a stable URL or a Digital Object Identifier (DOI) is not supplied by the publisher
- enhanced access to electronic content enabled for students based on or off campus, especially where single sign-on procedures are not supported
- enhanced support for evidence and workgroup based student learning
